

excerpt from Poems of the Porcupine Mountains

by Rosalie Petrouske

Manabezho Falls

Water rushing,
hear its roar
on the approach.

Powerful spirit God
resides in this churning fall of silver blue.

Tread softly, place a foot just so, follow the steps of the Ojibwa who walked here long ago.